SCHOOL PRIZE
DISTRIBUTIONS.

MR. HO KAM TONG AND EDUCATION.

SAIYINGPUN SCHOOL PRIZE DISTRIBUTION.

The prizes won by the students at Saiyungpun School were distributed by Mr. Ho Kam Tong on Saturday morning, and the feature of the ceremony was a somewhat striking speech by Mr. Ho Kam Tong.

Mr. A. Morris (the headmaster) in his annual report stated that the School had been practically full throughout the year, the maximum monthly enrolment being 409 in March and 408 in June. The average attendance was 345.9, an increase of 25.4 on that of 1915. Fees showed an increase of $600. Over 200 applied for admission; of these 180 were admitted and the remainder rejected either on account of age, or inability to pass the entrance examination in Chinese. The work done at the school was described as "highly satisfactory." Mr. Ho Kam Tong, who distributed the prizes in February last, has endowed two Scholarships, each of the value of $30, for Classes 5 and 6, and named them "Ho Kam-tong" and "Ho Kam-tong" respectively. Mr. Ho Kam Tong subsequently presented the School with a life-size oil painting of himself. The report specially thanked those who had made donations to the Prize Fund, thus enabling awards to be made for attendance and good conduct, and it was mentioned that 40 boys had made full attendance during the year. The following were the donors of the special prizes:—Hon. Mr. Lau Chu-pak, Mr. and Mrs. Wong Kam-fuk, Mr. Chun Kai-ming, Mr. Ho Fuk, Mr. Ip Sui-chi, Mr. Ho Cheung-shui, Mr. Mr. K. Lo, Mr. Ho Wing, Mr. Ho Lu, Mr. Ho Kwong, Mr. Ho Leung, Mr. Li Siu-kam, The Sun Co. Com. Beckwith, N.N., and Messrs. A. Lung were thanked for the loan of flags.

After distributing the prizes Mr. Ho Kam Tong said:—Just twelve months ago I had the honour of giving away the prizes here, and to-day I am performing the same fun with, if possible, greater pleasure, for I come among you as an old friend. I have listened to the report of the Headmaster, which shows that good work was done in the past year, and I congratulate both masters and boys upon the satisfactory results achieved. I understand that several applicants for admission were rejected last year owing to their inability to pass the entrance examination in Chinese. I am glad that this essential qualification has been insisted upon, and hope that the rule will not be relaxed. Upon the necessity for Chinese boys to have a good knowledge of the Chinese language I dealt at some length when I was last with you, and I cannot usefully add anything beyond impressing upon all the importance of that requirement. I am glad to hear that an English Speaking Association has been formed. Chinese boys studying English are generally shy of speaking that language, with the result that after they have left school they are unable to converse in that tongue with fluency. At a meeting of the Legislative Council held in October last, the Hon. Mr. Lau Chu-pak expressed the opinion that Chinese boys should be able to speak English as well as students of a decade or two ago; and he suggested that this condition must have been brought about by too many subjects being crammed into the heads of present-day students before they have had proper grounding in the fundamental elements of the language. I cordially endorse these views, and I hope that the competent authorities will seriously look into this matter. Now, I will say a few words to the scholars. Boys, your Headmaster informs me that some of you have not been regular and punctual in your attendance. I cannot too strongly impress upon you the absolute necessity for attending school regularly and with punctuality. A school is like a machine, with the teaching staff and the scholars forming its component parts. If one part, however small, does not perform its allotted task, it impedes the smooth working of the whole. Besides, time is valuable, especially to those who are endeavouring to acquire knowledge to fit themselves for the business of life. As the Chinese proverb says: "Vain regrets in old age do not bring back time lost in younger days." Take, therefore, good care of your time, and time will take good care of you. There is another matter on which I wish to say a few words. It has been brought to my notice that some boys evince absolutely no interest in their school as soon as they leave it; they do not even take notice of their old masters in the street. The one is possibly due to the absence of a feeling of esprit de corps among the scholars; for the other there is positively no excuse. I do not think much of a man, however brilliant his parts, if he forgets the school which gave him his education; and I think still less of him who does not pay the respect due to his former teachers. Do you not remember the saying: "When you drink water, think of where it came from?" Young men must show respect not only to their teachers but to all their seniors. Speaking generally, I find the present-day young men sadly lacking in manners and in proper respect for their elders. Some regard good manners as being inconsistent with independence. Let me at once disabuse them of such a peculiar notion. Look at the French nation. She is one of the greatest republics in the world, and yet she is noted for her innate politeness and civility. If you want to see your country great, you should begin by cultivating sedulously these qualities—respect for your superiors, kindness to all, and a spirit of esprit de corps. If you have these feelings truly in you, the other good qualities will come naturally to you. I have now a more pleasant subject to talk about. I refer to the Old Boys' Division of St. John Ambulance Brigade, formed by former scholars of this school. This is a movement that has my hearty sympathy, for I hold that in joining the Division a boy will make himself useful to both his home and the State.

ELLIS KADOORIE SCHOOL.

On Saturday morning the prizes and certificates gained during the year by the pupils in the Ellis Kadoorie School (Hongkong College) were distributed by the Hon. Mr. Claud Severn, M.A., Colonial Secretary. The function took place in the School hall, and was attended by practically all the pupils of the school. Flanking the platform, which was decorated with a huge "Union Jack," were stands containing a number of exhibits of paintings and drawings executed by the pupils in a voluntary competition for special prizes. The work was very creditable, considering these subjects are not included in the curriculum of the school.

Supporting the Colonial Secretary on the platform were Mr. Ellis Kadoorie and Mr. R. E. O. Bird, M.A., headmaster.

ANNUAL REPORT.

Mr. Bird read his annual report, which was in the following terms:—
"The school has been in the hands of the Government for two years and I am able now to report on the work of a full school year. I am glad to say that this report is satisfactory. We have directed our attention chiefly towards colloquial English as being the first and most natural step towards a sound practical knowledge of the English language, and I am pleased to be able to state that the general knowledge of English is higher than it was at this time last year. Almost every day in which this hall has been available object lessons have been given in it, and these have served as a centre for discussion. The pictures in the 'Shing Po,' which is forwarded to us every fortnight, are useful and profitable. The school also provides English and Chinese illustrated papers from a fund which Mr. Cheng Kairin ably superintends. This improvement in colloquial English would have been impossible without the hearty co-operation of the staff; for teaching colloquial means much hard and intelligent work. Although they have worked well, I believe that we shall not see the best results before several years, when the present lower-class boys reach the upper classes. The maximum enrolment was 460 and the average attendance 392, an increase of 8 over the previous year. A drill has been carried out regularly during the whole of the cool season and with beneficial results. Mr. Mycock is 'drill master' in chief, but several of the Chinese staff are now most efficient instructors, notably Messrs. Mr. Fung Chow, Kung Hon, Lai Pui Yan and Ho Wa Ching. Last year the drill was entirely physical, but the possibility of our joining the Red Cross Brigade led us to undertake a few of the elementary military manoeuvres. In order to make the boys realise the value of doing breathing exercise properly and of exercising their muscles, and to help them in studying hygiene, elementary physiology has been taught throughout the school.

Mr. Ng Fung-chau has supervised the Vernacular work and the results have been good. The Vernacular teachers have given lessons in the hall in front of several classes at a time and many masters. I think this has been a good stimulus to all concerned and enables the masters to acquire the best methods of teaching.

"However, as a gifted Professor once said, 'Animals do not play because they are young; they are young in order that they may play,' and so we too have fulfilled this purpose of nature. Our efforts have been directed chiefly towards swimming. Many Sundays and other holidays have been devoted to swimming excursions. These were very popular. On Dragon Boat Day four launches full of boys went first to swim at Plover Bay and then to see the races at Aberdeen. At the beginning of the Term we had swimming drill throughout the school. As a result of all this the number of boys who could swim gradually increased. This was noticeable to all who accompanied the swimming parties. It was very noticeable too at the Aquatic Sports held by the Hongkong Amateur Athletic Federation in the V.R.C. swimming bath in October last. On this occasion E. K. S. won the Team Race and in the 220 yards race actually obtained 1st, 2nd and 3rd places.

"We are glad to note that the P.W.D. has taken in hand the ground in Hospital Road so generously given to the school by Mr. Ellis Kadoorie and that it is surely being made into Volley Ball courts. We need them. We have at present no space big enough even for a Volley Ball Court. We thank the Y.M.C.A. for their kindness in allowing us to practice there. The Superintendent of the Botanical and Forestry Department supplied us among other things with 8 Banyan logs. The bursting of these logs into leaf awoke the wonder of many of the present generation and will provide shade for many of another. Mr. Lam Kwan Shan is in charge of the Ellis Kadoorie School Botanical Department.

Over 300 boys from the Ellis Kadoorie School have been vaccinated by the Government Civil Hospital.

The Hon. Mr. Lau Chu Pak and Mr. Ho Fook kindly sent donations to the Prize Fund. We have also much pleasure in thanking the Sun Co. and Ying Wah for sending us prizes."

The Hon. Mr. Claud Severn then presented the prizes and certificates. Following the presentation of prizes the Hon. Mr. Claud Severn addressed the staff and pupils. He congratulated Mr. Bird and his assistants on the very satisfactory report which had been read.

State. It was especially gratifying to me to see that this Division was placed second in order of merit at the last Ambulance Competition, losing by only 24 per cent. of marks to a Platoon formed 15 months before it was. After such solid good work, I feel that the close interest I have hitherto taken in the Division has not been taken in vain, and I sincerely hope that it will win the shield at the next competition. It only remains for me to wish masters and boys a very pleasant holiday."

The school had not only a large roll and a good average attendance, but the scholars had done better than in the previous year, and all departments of the work were working smoothly. He was glad to hear that the study of English had made good progress. That was a subject to which attention had been drawn by those interested in education in Hongkong, and a special effort was being made to see that a proper knowledge of the written and spoken language was within the reach of all scholars both in the Government schools and the other schools in Hongkong. (Appl.) It was also very gratifying to find that a knowledge of swimming, to which he had drawn attention last year, had made such good progress. He had looked at the ground above the hospital as he came to the school that morning and noticed that one of the volley-ball courts appeared to be approaching completion. He hoped they would all be in working order before the end of this winter and that they would all take a lively interest in that game, which gave an opportunity in a small compass for a great many players to take part at the same time. There was one new feature in the school this year, namely, the voluntary undertaking by many pupils of drawing and painting out of school hours. He had examined, as far as he could in a limited time, the drawings produced, and he must say most of them showed great originality and some of them considerable merit. He had been greatly pleased with this voluntary effort and its results and he at once made up his mind to give some form of prize to be competed for (Appl.) but on getting to the platform he learned that his idea had been forestalled, and that Mr. Lau Chu Pak and Mr. Ho Fook had already given prizes in connection with the drawing. He was not, however, going to be done out of his intention in that way, and he hoped to add a prize to their prizes, to be competed for during the coming year. (Appl.) A condition, of course, would be that the work was done outside school hours, and he would like his 'prize' to be devoted to landscape painting. He knew no more enjoyable recreation than to be able to go out among the beauties of nature and depict as faithfully as one could what one saw. They were in the possession, through the munificence of several donors, of a number of scholarships, some of them to Queen's College and others to help those who were rising from class to class in the school. He hoped that many of those who had not been able to get scholarships would endeavour to go to Queen's College and other Secondary schools in the Colony. Although the temptation to leave school early and get remunerative employment was great, the end of the benefit of going further in their education would not be lost if they made up their minds to pass at least two years more in study. (Appl.)

The proceeding were brought to a close with cheers for the King, for the Hon. Mr. Claud Severn, Mr. Ellis Kadoorie, and Mr. Bird and staff.

INDIAN SCHOOL, SOO KAN POO VALLEY.

The prizes were distributed at the Indian School, Soo Kan Poo Valley, on Saturday by Mr. Ellis Kadoorie. Those also present included Mr. E. Ralphs (Inspector of English Schools), Mr. Madar, Mr. U. Ramjahn, Mr. O. Kitchell, Mr. Ali Bat, Mr. A. Samy, Mr. J. Monda, Mr. Sunder Singh, Mr. A. Razack, Mr. Bughal Singh, Mr. Bishen Singh, Mr. Abdullah, and Mr. Dhool.

In his report the Headmaster stated that the new School building generously presented to the Colony by Mr. Ellis Kadoorie was opened by H.E. Sir Henry May in October. It is a very handsome edifice, built at a cost of $35,000, and is situated in the Soo Kan Poo Valley near Causeway Bay.

The attendance at the school has considerably increased. In July the number on the roll was 50 with a daily average attendance of 46. In November the number on the roll was 71 with a daily average attendance of 67.

In Classes 4, 5, 6, and 7, the work compares favourably with that done by these Classes in other Government Schools, though Composition and Writing ought to be better. In Arithmetic, which seemed rather weak, test papers are set and corrected with the boys by the Headmaster. Reading in the Upper Classes is good. Mr. Bishen Singh reports that in Urdu the boys read well, but that their colloquial is not good owing to the fact that many of them speak only Chinese in their homes. It also seems impossible to get copybooks locally. The behaviour of the boys outside the School premises leaves a good deal to be desired, but an improvement is gradually being effected. In school, the discipline in the upper classes is generally good. The younger boys are inclined to be restless and lazy, but are now learning habits of discipline.

The only game taken up at present to any extent is football. The School has entered a team for the Hongkong Schools Junior League, but is seriously handicapped by the older boys being over age, so the team is very small when compared with Chinese teams, which have no age-limit. Friendly games with other schools have been played, and in these the school has held its own.

Classes matches six-a-side, are being played now, and the boys show great keenness. It is hoped to commence Tennis very shortly. Physical drill was started at the end of October in all classes for two periods of half-an-hour each week.

There are two Free Scholarships to the top boys in all classes from Class 7 upwards, and one Free Government Scholarship tenable for three years at Queen's College, awarded to the top boy of the School, Mr. Ellis Kadoorie has founded an "Ellis Kadoorie Scholarship" of $80 tenable for one year at Queen's College, to be awarded to the second boy in the School.

Mr. Ellis Kadoorie is at present paying fees for 21 boys (ten Sikhs and eleven Mohammedans). He is willing to pay for 50. The selection is in the hands of the Headmaster. Mr. Arculli is

UNFOUNDED RUMOURS.

With reference to certain rumours, which have been current in the Colony with regard to losses of vessels of the Indo-China S. N. Co., Ltd., we are informed by Messrs. Jardine, Matheson & Co., Ltd., the General Managers, that such rumours are entirely without foundation.

JAPAN-INDIAN FREIGHTS.

The Indo-Japanese Freight Association, composed of the Nippon Yusen Kaisha, the Osaka Shosen Kaisha, and the P. & O. Company, in view of the increased freight for India, has announced a complete revision of Japan-India freights, which is to become operative from Feb. 1st (reports a Kobe paper). The chief points of the revision are that freights for Hongkong, Singapore, Penang, and Colombo have been raised by 11 per cent, and those for Bombay by 12, while the five per cent. rebate granted in respect of freights for Hongkong, Singapore, Penang, and Colombo has been cancelled, but the 10 per cent. rebate for Bombay freights has been retained. Matches, cement, and other goods hitherto counted by the number of packages in calculating freights will hereafter be reckoned by the ton of 40 cubic feet, this change averaging an increase of about 10 per cent. in the scale of freights.

CLUB AND KOWLOON "A" DRAW.

GOOD BATTING DISPLAY BY KOWLOON.

When time was reached in the Club v. Kowloon match which was played on the Club Ground on Saturday, the Club wanted 51 runs to win, and there were three wickets to fall, the game thus ending in a draw somewhat in favour of Kowloon. Batting first, Kowloon did exceedingly well, and opened with a first wicket stand which produced 61 runs. This was followed by some sound run-getting on the part of B. D. Evans, in particular, and L. Grey, who took the score from 84 to 207 before a separation was brought about. Evans' 79 was a delightful exhibition of good, clean hitting, the score including fourteen fours. Grey also had ten boundary hits to his credit. Taylor was the only Club bowler to do any good, and his 4 for 62 was a commendable achievement where so many failed. After a poor opening, the Club batsmen commenced to score freely, with the obvious intention of forcing a win against time. However, they found this task beyond them, and after seven bowlers had been tried, a draw was the result. Scores:—

ASSOCIATION FOOTBALL.
HONGKONG LEAGUE, 1ST DIVISION.

R.E. v. R.G.A.

This meeting on the Club Ground on Saturday provided a fine game, with the issue in doubt until the final whistle sounded. A large amount of the credit for such an even and low scoring game is due to the two goalkeepers, who both did splendid work for their respective sides on many occasions. Not long after the commencement, Scott opened the score for the Engineers with a shot that gave Garrod no chance. Shortly afterwards Moran, for the gunners had hard lines with a shot that hit the cross-bar and passed over. Townsend was often dangerous in this half and gave Garrod a lot to do, but the goalkeeper was always safe and cleared cleanly. The R.E. forwards were combining much better than their opponents and most of the play was in the Artillery half of the field. Moran and Leighton, coming through in the centre, looked likely scorers, but "hands" against the latter upset their arrangements. Just before half-time there was a fine run up the wing by Youngman, who, however, spoiled the effort by shooting at the goalkeeper, who had no difficulty in saving.

After the interval the sappers came up and Talford, trying to stop Pearce, conceded a corner. The Engineers did not benefit much by it, however, as Townsend sent the ball high over the bar. The R.G.A. then not away, but Hopper went back and averted the danger, while another effort by the gunners was spoiled by offside. A beauty from Youngman was wasted, Leighton failing to get to it and Halls putting it over. Another nice pass across the goalmouth resulted in a duel between Halls and Wilkinson, but the latter won. In this half a large portion of the time was spent around the R.E. goal, but whenever the sappers broke away they nearly always managed to get into the vicinity of the opposing goal before Garrod, Caple or Dickenson could stop them. Townsend (R.E.) once came up in great style and Dickenson, leaving the ball to Garrod, tried to keep the man off. Townsend, however, by a very quick foot movement, just managed to touch the ball sufficiently to alter its flight, with the result that Garrod had to make a very special effort in order to clear. Halls put in a nice centre, but it was not accepted. Youngman, who has disappointed a good many of his admirers lately, played a splendid game on the right wing and put in many beautiful centres, only one of which, however, met with its reward. The sappers were off again, and Townsend (R.E.), who was making Millard, stopped to appeal for offside, with the consequence that Millard got away and created danger in the Artillery zone. A judicious back pass from Scott to another forward, caused Garrod to shine again, and almost immediately he was called upon to save a long one from Pearce. A mis-kick by Coxon in the goalmouth was nearly fatal, but Wilkinson cleared. Townsend (R.E.) became quite a passenger in the second half owing to an injured ankle. A clever forward pass by Talford sent his forwards away, but Leighton and Edgeler missed their chance. Then Youngman put in another fine centre, and this time Moran was there and saw to it that there was no mistake, scoring the equaliser amid great excitement. The final whistle sounded as Leighton put in a fine shot which many thought had scored, but which had only hit the upright. This is the third time these teams have met and the result has been three draws, with only two goals scored in the three matches. It was a splendid game and their next and, possibly last, meeting should be the scene of a great struggle.

Teams:—
R.E.—Wilkinson, Blumfield, and Coxon; Richards, Hopton and Baker; Millard, Townsend, Scott, White and Pearce.
R.G.A.—Garrod; Caple and Dickenson; Gorman, Talford and Townsend; Youngman, Edgeler, Moran, Leighton and Halls.

NAVY v. K.S.L.I.

These teams met in the Hongkong League, on the Navy Ground. The Shropshire forwards were the more aggressive, but Hopper and Martin were in pretty good form and generally had them in hand. Braddock, on the right wing, cleverly eluded several, but Hopper managed to pull up. Williams tested Crocker with a long shot, which the latter punched away. Shortly afterwards Morris sent in another long one. Pritchards was well up and, before Crocker who was obviously handicapped by the sun, could clear, managed to hustle the ball into goal. The Navy forwards then put in some good work, Daniels at outside left making a fine effort. A pass from Palmer to Smith was followed by a hard shot, which Pritchards managed to save. He was called upon again almost immediately to save from Kitson. The Navy now had a good spell at attacking, but eventually Pritchards got away, passed the ball behind an opposing back, and, running round the same player, was able to regain possession from his own pass. He concluded this performance by putting in a fine shot which, however, went a little wide of the upright. At half-time the soldiers were leading by the only goal.

The Navy started off the second half in good style, but a rather foolish case of hands spoiled a promising movement. The soldiers got busy and Martin effected a nice clearance with Machin worrying him. Away again to the other end, where Clayton was ready and returned the ball with a tremendous kick, but the soldiers stuck to their task and got the ball up, causing the left wing of the Shropshire a lot of trouble before Clayton again relieved. It was the soldiers' turn again now, and Crocker had to run out to save. Then Wall stopped a Navy rush, while at the other end, when the soldiers appeared to be on the point of scoring, they were ruled offside. Taylor was given a nice pass by Peplow, but only managed a soft shot, which rolled past the goal. Machin then had a great tussle with Hopper from which he emerged victorious, but only managed to shoot over the bar. Hopper then headed away, and a mis-kick by Martin enabled Machin to force a corner. From this Hopp attempted a shot, but Biggs put the ball out again, while Pritchards nearly managed his second goal. Crocker, however, saved by throwing himself at the ball. Again Pritchards had a glorious opportunity, but, although only a few yards from goal, shot a long way over the bar. The game thus ended in a win for the K.S.L.I. by one goal to nil. Teams:—

Navy—Crocker; Martin and Hopper; Dann, Cornish and Biggs; Smith, Palmer, Sheahan, Kitson and Daniels.
K.S.L.I.—Pritchards; Clayton and Wall; Morris, Williams and Henn; Braddock, Taylor, Pritchards, Machin and Peplow.
Referee, Mr. Davies.

2ND DIVISION.

SOUTH CHINA ATHLETIC v. KOWLOON.

We remarked on Saturday that the Kowloon team is a much improved one, and the fact that they held their own on Saturday against the South China Athletic well into the second half goes far to prove it. True, the Athletic, on occasions, swarmed around the Kowloon goal, and did everything but score, but they must have been greatly surprised at the fine game the men from Kowloon put up against them. Kowloon had chances, but, like their opponents, were weak in front of goal, while when they did put in good shots the custodian managed to bring off a good save. Rodgers nearly did the trick on one occasion, but the goalkeeper warded off the danger. There seemed a likelihood of something happening in their favour when they forced a corner, but Clemp put the ball yards behind. Meanwhile the Chinese were hitting the cross-bar, the uprights, the goalkeeper, and in fact, as stated above, doing everything but score. Half-time arrived with the score-sheet blank.

In the second half Kowloon were again mostly penned in, but, in spite of this, kept their goal intact. From a good breakaway came hard lines in not scoring, and another effort by the right wing deserved success. The only goal of the match was that scored by the inside left of the Athletics; it was a good effort which thoroughly deserved success. The game thus ended in a win for the South China Athletic by 1 goal to nil.

88th CO. R.G.A. v. R.E. RESERVES.

In spite of having the major portion of the game in this match, the 88th Company had the mortification of seeing their comparatively weak opponents two goals up before they themselves had made a start. They hit a post goalkeeper, or back whenever they tried to shoot, with the result that, when half-time arrived, the sappers were leading by a goal, which came from a penalty given for "hands" Allen taking the kick and making no mistake.

Shortly after the resumption, the R.E. got going quickly and a nice pass from the right wing was neatly headed into goal by Reynolds. After a while Mancini managed to find the net for the gunners, and, just before time, Watson put in a good shot. Jones managed to stop it but could not clear, and Taylor, rushing up, equalised. Almost immediately afterwards the final whistle sounded.

"D" CO. K.S.L.I. v. LUSITANO.

This was the only uneven game of the day. The soldiers proved much too strong for the civilians, and it was soon evident that it was not a question of who would win, but of how many goals the victors would win by. The K.S.L.I. netted three in the first half, Matthews claiming two and Lloyd one, the Lusitano failing to reply.

Plimmer added the fourth for his side, spinning right round on one leg to do it. Matthews was making some fine openings, but a good many of his efforts were wasted, his outside right being rather weak. From one of their rare breakaways, E. P. Hyndman managed to score a point for the Lusitano. Stevington then added the fifth goal for the Shropshire with a good shot. Result:—"D" Co. K.S.L.I., 5; Lusitano, 1.

TENNIS.

A tennis tournament (singles) is being arranged, open to all Warrant Officers, Non-commissioned officers and men of the Army in Hongkong. A suitable trophy will be provided for the winner, and an entrance fee of 50 cents will be charged, which will go to provide other prizes. Names of intending competitors should be sent without delay to S.Q.M.S. Co., A.P.C., who is acting as Hon. Sec. pro tem. It is hoped to start the competition almost immediately.

TRADE OF HONGKONG.

"NO CHANGE."

The following statistics have been taken from the fortnightly price current and market report of the Hongkong General Chamber of Commerce:—

Stocks on January 11th totalled 380 chests of Patna, 143 of Benares, 216 of Malwa and 74 Persian and Turkish. There were no exports during the interval. In uncertified Bengal opium, the balance of stocks on January 11th was 88 chests of Patna and 123 of Benares. No opium was boiled by Government monopoly.

EXPORTS.

The Feather market has been fair. About 1,600 bales changed hands during the fortnight. The shipments have mostly been for London. There is a small business passing in Ginger. No business has been done in Galangal. Cassia Oil is an easier trade, but there is no business to report. There is nothing doing in Star Aniseed Oil or Star Aniseed; and no change to report in the Ground Nuts trade. The Yunnan Tin trade is still a negligible quantity, and the same may be said of Saigon Cassia, Gall Nuts and Bristles.

IMPORTS.

During the early part of the fortnight the Cotton Yarn market was quite active, and prices advanced $4 to $7, but latterly, owing to the disorganization due to the Banks being most unwilling to draw on India, business is restricted. Quotations are:—No. 10s at $110/135, No. 12s at $122/164, No. 16s at $133/154, No. 20s at $141/173. Arrivals, 4,500 bales. Sales, 12,000 bales. Shipments, 1,500 bales. Unsold stock, 8,000 bales. Bargains, 28,000 bales. The Woollens market is very "flat," and there is still no market for Raw Cottons. Everything is very quiet in the Metals market, and there is no change to report. The same may be said of Yellow Metal and Petroleum Products. As to Coal, prices have advanced since the last report, but there are no sales to record. The Sugar market is dull.

FLOUR.

In the American market, wheat has had a set-back on the recent peace talk, but this has not so far reacted on the cost of flour. Australia: There is practically no surplus available for export, which is at present prohibited. Locally: Stocks are about 200,000 sacks of all grades, a good portion of which is old crop cargo. Demand is exceedingly dull, and clearances small. Quotations: American patent $4, American cut off $3.40, American straight $3.35, Shanghai flour $3/3.05.

HONGKONG'S FINANCES.

The following financial statement has been issued from the Colonial Treasurer's office for the month of October:—

RIFLE SHOOT.

The Dockyard Recreation Club met the Hongkong Police Reserves in a rifle shoot in the Hongkong League, on Saturday. The Dockyard won by 21 points after the usual 4 per cent. deduction for the privilege of using aperture sights. The Hongkong Police Reserves are to be congratulated on their shooting, and, with a little luck, which was not with them on Saturday, should make the best teams extend themselves to the utmost.

THE PRICE OF PEACE.

THE Allies' reply to President Wilson's Peace Note is in striking contrast to the vague and hypocritical overtures of the Central European Powers. In frank and fearless language it sets forth the only terms upon which the Allies are prepared to consider the cessation of hostilities. There is no need to enumerate those terms, for they were clearly stated in 1914, when England, France and Russia were reluctantly compelled to unsheath the sword by the Central Empires' guilty act of aggression, and they have been frequently repeated since. They may be summed up in the sentence that the Allies are determined "to rescue Europe from the brutal encroachments of Prussian militarism." It now remains for Germany to convince the world of her good faith. If, as she is never tired of protesting, she is sincerely anxious for peace and is merely fighting for the right of existence she should welcome the opportunity of laying down her arms by relinquishing the territories she has wrested from her neighbours. She has the assurance that there is no intention "to exterminate or extinguish politically the Germanic peoples." We do not suppose, however, that even President Wilson, who professes to find an analogy between the objects of the two groups of belligerents, believes that Germany's new-found passion for peace will survive such an ordeal as this. All that Germany desires is to adjourn the war to a more convenient season, retaining in the meantime the fruits of her early successes. She realises full well that if she could not crush her intended victims when she caught them unprepared, she has no chance of averting defeat now that they have had more than two years in which to marshal their superior resources against her. The Allies, however, have no intention of allowing her to escape the consequences of her crimes. "War is preferable to peace as the Prussian price." While they are under no delusions as to the magnitude of the task which confronts them, they have no doubt as to their ability to accomplish that task. As Mr. Lloyd George declared in his vigorous speech at the Guildhall last Thursday, they feel that "if victory is difficult defeat is impossible." The requisite steps are being taken to obtain the necessary man-power—the latest cables intimate that all the eligibles in Great Britain up to 31 years of age are to be called to the Colours—and "with proper support," says Mr. Lloyd George, "our gallant armies will cleave the road to victory in 1917." As to the nature of that support we are not left in any doubt. The British Government is inviting subscriptions to two new War Loans of an unspecified amount. One is a Five per cent. loan issued at 95 per cent., and subject to Income-tax; the other a Four per cent. loan issued at par, and free of Income-tax. The first is for thirty years, and the second for twenty-five years, the Government reserving the right to redeem both at any time after the year 1929. In order to provide against depreciation the Treasury undertakes to set aside a fixed sum monthly for the purpose of forming a fund to be used for purchasing stock or bonds of either loan for cancellation whenever the market price falls below the issue price. The dividends will be payable half-yearly and will be exempt from Income-tax if it is shown that the stock or bonds are in the beneficial ownership of a person who is not ordinarily resident in the United Kingdom without regard to the question of domicile. That is a concession which will be appreciated locally. There is every indication that the loans will be widely supported. "A successful loan," Mr. Lloyd George assures us, "will shorten the war, save lives, and save the British Empire, Europe, and Civilization." The money is not needed merely for our own use. The Allies, we are told, are looking more and more towards Great Britain, and everyone will share the PREMIER's confidence that their trust will not be misplaced. The Germans at this moment are pressing back the Russians and Roumanians, "not because they are better fighters, but because they are better equipped." Neither chivalry nor self-interest will permit us to look on at this unmoved. The aims and the interests of the Allies are one and indivisible, and every gun and every shell which we can spare for our gallant comrades-in-arms are as truly used in our service as if they were retained on the Western front. They serve the two-fold purpose of moving down the men in the enemy's ranks, and of preventing the Central European Powers from over-running fresh territory and drawing from it additional means of resistance. Russia has inexhaustible reserves of man-power, and had she been able to arm them properly the map of Europe to-day would wear a very different aspect. In the coming Spring Great Britain hopes to be able to supply Russia's needs. She has also to continue her aid to the Serbians, the Greek Volunteers, the Belgians, the Portuguese, and the Italians. Those of us whose lot is cast in this little favoured outpost of Empire, far from the horror and misery of war, are afforded an opportunity of taking a share—a small share it may be—of this burden, which individually we are so much better able to bear than our fellow-countrymen at Home. Shall we not accept it gratefully? All that is necessary is to curtail our luxuries and indulgences and place the money so saved at the service of our soldiers, who have sacrificed for us all that they hold dear save honour. What shall be said of us if we deny them the means of obtaining speedy victory and of re-establishing on a firm foundation the peace of the world? The nation needs every cent that it can get, and now that a War Savings Association is being established in Hongkong there are none so poor in pocket that they cannot do something systematically to help forward the great cause. If only people can be made to realise that every dollar counts there need be no doubt as to their response.

The total output of the Kailan Mining Administration's mines for the week ending 20th December, 1916, amounted to 63,411 tons and the sales to 43,686 tons.

Sir Charles Eliot, vice-Chancellor of the University of Hongkong, is visiting British Malaya.

The Governor-in-Council has appointed Wednesday the 24th inst. to be observed as a General Holiday.

It is notified that the name of the Kung Wo Cheong Company, Limited, has been struck off the Register.

The particulars of the British War Loan Prospectus, published in our issue of Saturday, were circulated free of charge by the Eastern and Associated Telegraph Companies all over the Empire.

The average mean temperature during the month of December was 62.8, the lowest point reached being 50.4 on the 1st, and the highest 73.4 on the 18th. There was only 0.60 inch of rain, and there were 209 hours of sunshine. The average humidity was 60.

Mr. Denman Fuller will deliver his second lecture on "Musical Appreciation" at the Helena May Institute this afternoon at 5.30. The public are invited to attend. At this lecture Mr. Fuller will deal with the following compositions:—(1)—"Reflets dans l'eau," Debussy, (Modern French); (2)—"Au Couvent," Bordin, (Modern Russian); (3)—"Ballade," York Bowen, (Modern British). A collection will be made in aid of the Blinded Sailors' and Soldiers' Fund.

A Tennis match between Messrs. G. M. Church and H. A. Throgmorton, on the one side, and Messrs. H. A. Nisbet and R. Hancock on the other, will be played on the Club ground to-day at 4.30 p.m. in aid of War Charities. Mr. Church is a crack American player and holder in the U.S. (1916) of the Western Championship, the Delaware State and the Florida State Championships. Mr. Throgmorton is the holder of the Junior Championship of the U.S. and of the New York State Championship, 1916.

The amount collected on the occasion of the Matinee, at Victoria Theatre, on the 8th inst. in aid of "Crusada das Mulheres Portuguesas" amounted to $323.80. The expenses were $24.65. A draft for $23 12s. 3d. ($238.25) has been handed to Consulado Geral de Portugal. Mr. J. A. de Almeida thanks all who kindly contributed to their patriotic fund and helped to secure such a good result from the matinee. The assistance of Mr. P. R. (Portuguese Co.) and a special donation contributed by D.S.P. (R.) were greatly appreciated by him.

By Kind permission of His Excellency the Governor, Mr. Denman Fuller will give a piano recital at Government House on Monday, 5th February, at 2.15 p.m. Mr. Denman Fuller will be assisted by Mrs. Galloway (vocalist) and Mrs. Balcan (violinist). Refreshments will be provided by His Excellency in the Supper Room after the recital. Tickets, price $3 each, will be obtainable from Anderson Music and Robinson's Piano Companies. The proceeds will be given to the Hongkong Association of Women War Workers, while the programmes will be sold in aid of the Scottish Women's Hospitals Fund.

"POLICE RESERVE GAZETTE."

The second number of The Police Reserve Gazette has been published, and is as bright and entertaining as the opening number. There are many contributions of a varied nature, humorous and practical, which can be read by Police Reservists and others with both amusement and profit. Dr. Jordan, the Corps Medical Officer, contributes a timely article on "small-pox and vaccination," and there is an appropriate photograph showing some members of the Corps Ambulance Section busy operating on the arms of Chinese. On the humorous side there are contributions which deal in a subtle manner with Corps happenings, and the communication which suggests a programme for a Police Reserve smoking concert might be acted upon with most interesting results, assuming all the suggested artists agree to collaborate according to the programme devised. The Editor is extremely gratified at the success which greeted the opening issue of the Gazette, for he says:—"Our first number, we are happy to state, has been most kindly received in all quarters, . . . but the most gratifying note struck by those who have conveyed their congratulations to us is in the firm conviction that the Gazette has a really useful purpose to serve, and that its future is assured beyond all doubt." The present standard has only to be maintained for the success of the publication to be assured.

General Dmitrieff, in an Order issued to the troops who participated in the successful offensive on the Riga front, says:—Snow, frost and impassable marshes did not check your ardour. After long hand-to-hand fighting you pierced enemy fortifications which he had been constructing for 15 months. Despite the fire of hundreds of machineguns you cleared a passage with the awe-inspiring silence of the bayonet, thus economising thousands of shells. I salute you. I humbly thank you for a fine New Year's gift to Russia.

PROCLAMATION BY THE KAISER.

A CHARACTERISTIC OUTBURST.

AMSTERDAM, January 13th.

The Kaiser in a Proclamation to the German people says:—"Our enemies have dropped their mask after refusing, with scorn and hypocritical professions of love of humanity, our honest peace offer."

"They are now replying to the United States and have admitted their lust of conquest, the baseness of which is enhanced by their calumnies. They aim at crushing Germany and at the enslavement of Europe and the seas under the same yoke that Greece, with gnashing of teeth, is now enduring."

The Proclamation goes on to declare that "our glorious victories and the iron will with which the Germans have borne hardships and distress in this unscrupulous economic war guarantee that the beloved Fatherland has nothing to fear. Burning indignation and holy wrath will redouble every German's strength, and God will give full victory over the enemy's rage for destruction."

PARLIAMENTARY REORGANISATION.

LONDON, January 14th.

It is stated that the first £100,000,000 was reached at an early hour.

THE GERMAN NOTE.

A CAUSTIC REJOINER.

LONDON, January 13th.

Reuter authoritatively issues a statement which may be regarded as expressing the views of the Allies on the German Note.

It again emphasises that it was Germany who refused a conference in the critical days of July, 1914.

With reference to Germany's allusions to Ireland and South Africa, it says that whatever the past differences in connection with these countries, Germany knows to her cost that they are now united with the rest of the Empire in repelling Germany's aggression.

Replying to the German assertion that our starvation policy is inhumane, the statement asks if Germany was of the same opinion in 1870 when she starved Paris.

Regarding the attempted defence of her overrunning of Belgium, the statement reminds Germany that Dr. Bethmann-Hollweg in the Reichstag stated that the invasion was justified by military necessity.

BOY ORGANISTS.

YOUTHFUL PLAYER WHO NEVER HAD A "REAL" LESSON.

Boy organists, who have taken the places of their seniors called to the colours, are doing remarkably well, to judge by facts supplied to the Daily News as the result of the publication of a paragraph about an organist of 14 at Yarmouth.

Another 14-year-old musician plays the large two-manual organ at Emmanuel Church, Maidenhall, N.W., and also helps in the training of the choir. His name is Benjamin Simmons, and when a Daily News representative met him after the morning service he was wearing a broad Eton collar and looking particularly rosy-cheeked and boyish.

"I started learning the piano when I was ten," he said, "but have never had a proper lesson on the organ. Playing it comes quite naturally to me, though, and I enjoy it immensely. The most difficult thing is the 'pointing' of the pedals."

Young Simmons has won scholarships at Trinity College of Music, and looks forward to a musical career. Yet another boy-organist, is Ronald Chamberlain, aged 15, who is in charge of the organ during war-time at Harecourt Church, Canonbury, N.W.

"His executive ability," writes Mr. Walter Kimpton, the choir-master, "is a splendid instrument, and I recommend music-lovers in North London to visit the church in St. Paul's Road to get an idea of what a youth can do towards helping on the musical portion of the service."

Still another who has not yet reached his teens is Arthur Hunt, son of Mr. W. H. Hunt, of Chelston, Torquay. He plays at Cockington Parish Church. Mr. Howard Moss, organist and choir-master, of Gravesend Parish Church, was appointed at the early age of eleven.

But any member may, at the time of sending his first subscription, give notice to the Honorary Treasurers that, whenever they receive interest, he desires to be paid any share thereof to which he is entitled; in which case he shall be paid his share of such interest as soon as practicable after its receipt by the Honorary Treasurers.

7.—So soon as practicable after the close of the war but not before the year 1920 the invested funds will be realised and shall be divided among the members in the proportion which the amounts at the credit of their accounts respectively bear to the sum available for distribution.

8.—The Honorary Treasurers shall keep accounts of all subscriptions paid, and shall furnish each member, upon his applying for the same, with a Pass Book, in which shall be entered the amount, or several amounts, subscribed by such member, and the equivalent thereof in sterling into which such amount or amounts have or have been converted. 10.—In the event of the death of a member a similar certificate shall be issued to his legal personal representative.

11.—A fee of $5 shall be charged for the certificate referred to in Rules 9 and 10, and such fee shall form part of the funds of the Association, to be invested and ultimately divided among the members as aforesaid.

14.—No deduction whatever shall be made from the funds of the Association in respect of working expenses.

HONGKONG AND THE WAR.

VIEW OF THE REV. J. K. MACONACHIE.

Yesterday morning, at the Union Church, the Rev. J. K. Macdonald made a reference, in the course of his sermon, to the war and the attitude of Hongkong towards it.

He said:—A year ago I had a letter from a very sober-thoughted and well-informed friend in England, in which he said he thought by another New Year the world would have "returned to sanity." That was a common expectation, but here is another figure on the calendar and still the struggle goes on, and the only certain thing is that on our side we could not abandon it at the present stage without infidelity to the past and treachery to the future.

HONGKONG CRITICISM DEPRECATED.

The enemy has been putting out feelers after peace, but, much as some of us would do to put a stop to the strife and slaughter, we cannot but acquiesce in the unhesitating decision of the Allied Governments to reject these peremptorily. I always feel that we here in Hongkong ought not to make free with big and brave words on this subject, because it is not on us personally that it falls to make them good. I do not in the least insinuate that we are a Colony of skulkers or shirkers or anything of that kind. As far as one can judge, there can be but very few men here whose duty really lies in the trenches. But the fact remains—and who can help being keenly conscious of it—that we here, comparatively speaking, scarcely know there is a war at all. Some of us are past the age, or are otherwise ineligible for military service, and I feel, for one, that it is hardly for us to say much about what "we"—meaning our country in the persons of its youth and strength—are prepared to do in the way of determination and sacrifice. I hope and believe that if the lot had fallen upon us we should have accepted it without grudging; that if the war had broken out ten years earlier, and our duty had not lain in special service in this outpost of the Empire, we should not have held back from the risk of life, health, fortune—all that is now being ventured by others at the call of need and honour.

It was not ordered so, and here, therefore, for the time, is our place of duty. That is as it is; but for all that I feel that for the rest of my life I must take a second place—and a long second—after every man who has put his own life in peril, borne the actual brunt of the battle by land or sea (or at least offered to bear it), endured the dire hardships, faced the frightful shock and the gruesome horror near at hand of the desperate, fiery trial which we only read of as a contest at a far distance, whose outcome we keep assuring ourselves will be in "our" favour, though not by our efforts except in a very small and indirect degree. If any should be eager to see an end of the struggle it should be we who scarcely share it.

PEACE OUT OF THE QUESTION.

And yet, as I said, we are bound to approve the decision that the struggle must go on. Peace is out of the question so long as such an enemy poses as the conqueror. Not until it were able to resist no longer dare any nation with self-respect or any regard for the future of the world make terms, which as this stage would suit the brutal, bestial, heartless horde which has outraged every law of God and set at naught every convention of civilisation, counting nothing wrong which may gain it a point, and nothing right which stands in its way. Such is the present crime against humanity—the original crime of bringing on the war, outdistanced by the deliberately applied barbarism with which it has been maintained.

THE DUTY OF NEUTRAL NATIONS.

It is high time the neutral nations spoke their mind—if they have a mind—on these matters. What is the use of transmitting peace proposals—which, by the way, are no proposals—when all mankind is threatened with a recrudescence of every sinful tyranny which disgraced the worst ages of the world, and peace at this stage would mean its triumph? We cannot legislate for them, but we can and should ask ourselves what we are going to do in this New Year, which finds the great cause still far from victory. Our new Prime Minister, praising our new Armies and appealing to our historic past, said the other day that our enemies had forgotten what we were like in the old days, but will never forget it after this war. His words were cheered, and we all felt a glow as we read them.

WHAT HONGKONG DOES.

Well, what can we do here, in this safe corner of the Empire? We do a little work—some more than a little. We give a little money, possibly postpone a furlough. But they say that Hongkong, on the whole, is doing very well for itself because of the war—what with trade bonuses, percentages, and so forth. They say, also, that as a whole our Colony has scarcely restricted its luxuries, let alone impinging on its comforts. Is that so? You know better than I. Certainly, on the surface of things, there are not many signs of seriously restricted expenditure—though the surface is not always a true index. The Empire is at stake, civilisation in peril, and yet men can spend time and money arranging races and prize fights, and betting on them heavily, and women gravely deliberate on the magnitude of the stakes permissible at the card games which occupy time which should be given to war work. It seems strange to an observer, and not the best of taste—to say the least of it—when our boys are bleeding in the trenches! People see things so differently and feel them so differently. I do not judge those who may see things at quite a different angle from me, but you will allow me an opinion and the expression of it, and it is this:—that many are taking things just now in a way they will be sorry for in time to come, if they retain much conscience. Another year is on us, and it is going to be one of privation and suffering and restriction in the Homeland. What is it going to be to us? Surely a year of work and sacrifice. Surely it is inspiration we shall draw from our dead and not reproach, as we think on the graves in France and Flanders, and Macedonia, in Africa, Mesopotamia, the Dardanelles, and under the deep sea!

HONGKONG MAGISTRACY.

OUT OFF AN EAR.

A remand was granted in a case in which a Chinese is charged with doing grievous bodily harm to another Chinese. It is alleged that defendant attacked the other man, who is in hospital, with a knife, and, in addition to other injuries, severed his right ear.

USELESS BOOTY.

An apprentice Chinese shoemaker was sentenced by Mr. Wood to fourteen days' hard labour for the theft of a pair of shoes from a showman outside a shop in Queen's Road, West. The shoes were produced in Court. They could have been of little or no value to defendant, as they were of different pattern, and one was black and the other brown.

OF A HORTICULTURAL BENT.

A basket containing a very fine collection of wild ferns was a conspicuous object for a short time in Mr. Wood's Court on Saturday. It represented the fruit of the enterprise and industry of a Chinese who was ignorant of, or had overlooked, the fact that it is an offence in the eyes of the law to appropriate wild ferns or plants from the hill-sides. He was fined $4, with the alternative of seven days' imprisonment, and the ferns were confiscated.

A BULKY WATCHMAN.

A ship's watchman appeared to the court to look rather bulky when he appeared on board. It is stated that on being challenged and asked to submit to a search the watchman became "nasty," and, in the course of slight scuffle that ensued, a packet fell from his person to the deck. The packet was found to consist of 10 tins containing opium, to the value of $80. A remand was granted on the application of Mr. Gardiner, solicitor, on behalf of Mr. Grist.

AN OPIUM DIVAN.

A Chinese was charged with keeping an opium divan at 21, Square Street, and nine others were charged with frequenting the place.

An informer spoke to visiting the place and finding all the men were smoking. There was also the paraphernalia of a smoking den.

Mr. E. J. Grist, who appeared for the first defendant, said these people were very poor, and although defendant undoubtedly pleaded guilty, yet he was an old man, and there were very few jobs for him to do. These people had very little money and could not afford to set themselves up with smoking utensils. It was therefore very convenient if they could drop in somewhere and have a smoke. They might as well try to stop an European from dropping into an hotel for a whisky and soda. The two things were no different. They would find it a hardship if their whisky and soda were stopped.

Mr. Melbourne inflicted a fine of $25 on the first defendant and fines of $2 each on the remainder.

EUROPEAN CHARGED WITH FALSE PRETENCES.

Frank Carlyle Castlemain was again before the Court in connection with the charge of securing board and lodging at the Seamen's Institute by false pretences. It is alleged that the man secured board and lodgings on the strength of his statement that he was still in the employ of the Asiatic Petroleum Company.

Two other charges were also preferred, of forging a certain security for the payment of $25 per month, on two different dates, the security bearing the name of Mr. W. A. Butterfield, with intent to defraud.

Mr. C. F. Mason, who appeared to defend, applied for a day for hearing to be fixed, and also asked for bail.

Inspector O'Sullivan asked for bail of $1,000.

Mr. Mason claimed that this was an exorbitant sum. Defendant was an European and under the present restrictions it was impossible for him to get away. In the case of Chinese it was a different thing, as they had free ingress and egress to and from the Colony.

His worship said it was a serious charge, and he could not take any less bail, and Castlemain was remanded.

money arranging races and prize fights, and betting on them heavily, and women gravely deliberate on the magnitude of the stakes permissible at the card games which occupy time which should be given to war work. It seems strange to an observer, and not the best of taste—to say the least of it—when our boys are bleeding in the trenches! People see things so differently and feel them so differently. It is officially announced that the battleship Regina Margherita struck two mines in the open sea on the night of the 11-12 inst., and sank in a few minutes.
Two hundred and seventy were saved with the greatest difficulty out of a complement of 945.
The missing include the Captain and fourteen officers.

THE SUBMARINE CAMPAIGN.

London, January 13th.
The sinking is reported of the Zaculent, British, and the Tugbory, Danish.

EARLIER CABLES.

London, January 12th.
The British steamers Eudworth and Kelvindale have been sunk.

Franco-Belgian Front.

THE FIGHTING ON THE WESTERN FRONT.
MORE GERMAN CAPTURED.

London, January 13th.
A communiqué states that the prisoners taken in the recent action north of the Ancre now number 204.
We entered trenches to the north of Arras and took prisoners.

THE GERMAN VERSION.

London, January 13th.
A German official message, transmitted by wireless, states that the English troops vainly attacked north of the Ancre. The German counter-attack north of Beaumont thrust them back from the positions they had gained.

EARLIER CABLES.

SUCCESSFUL BRITISH RAIDS.

ENEMY TRENCH CAPTURED.

London, January 13th.
Field-Marshal Sir Douglas Haig, in a communiqué, says:—We captured three-quarters of a mile of trench north-east of Beaumont Hamel and took 175 prisoners. A counter attack was broken up.
There were successful raids to the east of Arras, north-east of Ypres, and two in the neighbourhood of Grandcourt.

FURTHER DETAILS OF THE EIGHT.

London, January 13th.
Reuter's correspondent at Headquarters says the fighting on Wednesday and Thursday near Beaumont Hamel was an interesting departure in trench-raiding. It aimed at the mastery of positions and damaging the morale of the enemy, who was expectant of a respite owing to the bad weather. This resulted in depriving the enemy of the observation of a large area of our position and in the capture of three hundred Bavarian and Prussian prisoners. Whirlwind bombardments preceded the infantry advances.

A FALSE ALARM IN PARIS.

PREPARATION FOR A ZEPPELIN VISIT.

Paris, January 13th.
On reports from the front that enemy Zeppelins and aeroplanes were proceeding south, bugles sounded the alarm and the lights of Paris were extinguished at seven o'clock in the evening, but the sound of the alarm was signalled at eight o'clock, when it was found that the Zeppelins were not appearing.

The Near East.

LATEST CABLES.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

FURTHER ENEMY SUCCESSES IN ROUMANIA.

GERMAN MESSAGES.

London, January 13th.
A German official message sent by wireless says:—We stormed several positions on both sides of the Vitus road, capturing booty and prisoners.
"We pushed back the Russians between Braila and Galatz towards the Serech and captured Laburta."
Armed enemy vessels attempted on the night of the 10/11 inst., to pass Isakova. We sank one and another ran aground.
"The enemy fruitlessly attacked the Austro-Bulgarians behind Corava, south of Lake Ochrida."

ANOTHER BLOW AT THE TURK.

CLEARED OUT OF SINAI.

Cairo, January 13th.
The British in twelve hours captured the strong position of Rafa as a result of which the Turks have been cleared out of the Sinai Peninsula.
An Anzac mounted force effected a masterly surprise. The enemy consisted of Turkish regulars.

EARLIER CABLES.

THE FIGHTING IN ROUMANIA.

London, January 13th.
A Russian official message received by wireless states:—The enemy pressed us back a short distance, south of the Otuz River.
The Roumanians repulsed an attack to the west of Monastirka and Kachinul, and throw back the enemy two versts southwards.

OPERATIONS IN MESOPOTAMIA.

FURTHER BRITISH SUCCESSES.

London, January 13th.
An official message from Mesopotamia says:—We captured on Wednesday the majority of the trenches in the loop to the north-east of Kut.
Two hundred corpses were found in one of the communication trenches, and many elsewhere.

THE ULTIMATUM TO GREECE.

ANSWER "INSUFFICIENTLY PRECISE."

Athens, January 11th.
The Greek reply to the Allies' ultimatum makes all the concessions accompanied by conditions, including the raising of the blockade.

EVASIONS.

London, January 12th.
The Greek reply to the Allies' ultimatum evades the demand for apologies to the Allied Ministers and the public salutes to the Allied flags, in connection with the events of December 1st, and also ignores the demand for the removal of the officer responsible for the orders given on that date. Furthermore, the release of those arrested is not dealt with in accordance with the spirit of the Allied demand for immediate liberation.

BLOCKADE TO BE CONTINUED.

London, January 12th.
The Allies consider that the Greek reply is insufficiently precise. The Greek Government will be told that the reply gives pleasure so far as it goes, but a more definite acquiescence is necessary. The Allies do not intend to raise the blockade until their full demands have been conceded.
The Allies' representatives remain at Athens.

Russian Front.

EARLIER CABLES.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

THE RUSSIAN ADVANCE ON MITAU.

LED BY A BULGARIAN GENERAL.

Petrograd, January 12th.
The Bulgarian General Doitrieff commands the Russians advancing on Mitau. Announcement of his capture of 21 heavy guns, 11 field guns and much stores led to an unprecedented demonstration in the streets of Petrograd.
Prisoners report that there was a panic in Mitau following an aeroplane bombardment.
The Zeppelins attacked Riga, but were driven off. One is reported to have been destroyed.

General.

LATEST CABLES.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

AN INTER-ALLIED GENERAL
STAFF.

SUGGESTION FROM PARIS.

Paris, January 13th.
A Parliamentary group has passed a resolution urging the appointment of an inter-Allied General Staff which could advise the Governments upon the direction of the war. The appointment of a Commander-in-Chief by common consent is also suggested. He would be assisted by the inter-Allied staff and could, if necessary, amalgamate different troops.

HOW THE GERMANS WERE BLUFFED.

THE PLOTS IN AMERICA.

San Francisco, January 13th.
In the trial which resulted in the conviction of the German Consul-General, the Vice-Consul, a Lieutenant and two others, including a woman, of plotting to blow up munition works, railways, bridges, trains and munition ships, the chief witness was the informer Louis Smith, whom the German Military Attaché von Brincken engaged at a salary of $20 a month and expenses. A bonus of $200 was also offered him for every munition ship, etc., blown up.
Smith placed pieces of wood in ships instead of bombs and bluffed von Brincken for months. Then he confessed, fearing revenge.

MAN POWER QUESTION.

MINISTERIAL CONFERENCE.

London, January 13th.
The Times states that as a result of the Ministerial Conference on Man-Power at Downing-st., yesterday, it is expected that the previous ruling that all eligibles under 26 years were to be called out will shortly be extended to men under 31.

THE PEACE PROPOSALS.

GERMANY'S NOTE TO NEUTRALS.

AMSTERDAM, January 13th.
The German Note to neutrals reiterates that Germany took up arms to defend her existence and says that this aim has now been attained. The Note alleges that the Allies have departed more and more from their original expressed aims which are now directed towards conquest, and complains that the Allies have not examined Germany's peace offer and have not made counter proposals. It makes a series of allegations against the Allies, referring to Ireland, South Africa and Greece, and accuses them of breaking treaties, of ill-treating prisoners in Africa and Russia and of deporting civilians. It endeavours to throw responsibility for the fate of Belgium on Greece, Britain, France and Belgium herself and protests against the accusations of German atrocities in Belgium which it describes as calumnies.

AMERICAN OPINION.

New York, January 13th.
The New York Herald says:—"The Allies reply to President Wilson is a new declaration of independence on behalf of civilisation."

The New York Times:—"If Germany has the effrontery to say that the terms are unjust the judgment of the whole world will be against her. It is for Germany to say whether there is to be peace now. If she continues to fight, her defeat is inevitable and the final terms will be harder."

The World:—"Unless Germany is willing to follow the example of the Allies and state her war aims and peace terms she can have no standing before the tribunal of popular opinion."

The American, a pro-German paper, says:—"If the Allies insist upon their demands there will not be peace until one side conquers or both are exhausted."

COMMENTS ON THE BRITISH PRESS.

London, January 13th.
The Daily Chronicle comments upon the significant absence of any British demand in the Allies' reply regarding the captured German Colonies. This self-effacement, the paper thinks, is bound to impress public opinion in the United States, proving, as it does, that we entered the war simply from an overwhelming sense of duty. It will also remind Americans of their desirableness in relinquishing Cuba, and of our action in granting autonomy to the Boers.

The Daily News says that nothing could be better for the Allies than that the neutrals should be able to compare the Entente and Germany's Notes simultaneously. The next diplomatic step is doubtful but it is already a material advance to have approached within reasonable distance of negotiation.

SUBMARINE MENACE
GREATER THAN EVER.

SPEECH BY ADMIRAL JELlicoe.

London, January 13th.
Admiral Sir John Jellicoe has been given the freedom of the Fishmongers Association in the City.
In a speech, Sir John dwelt on the difficulties of Naval warfare as torpedoing which was effective at 10,000 yards, beyond which visibility was bad, especially in the North Sea. Submarines combined with mines prevented a close blockade; nevertheless the Germans had only once ventured far enough to fight. He called attention to the world-wide activities of the Navy, which comprised 4,000 vessels, and the arduous work of the Home Cruiser Squadron which examined weekly an average of 80 ships in all weathers.

The Admiral paid a tribute to the co-operation of the Mercantile Marine in transporting overseas 7,000,000 men together with guns, munitions and stores. Two thousand five hundred mercantile ships had been employed.

The submarine menace was greater than ever, and must and would be dealt with.
He appealed to shipbuilding workers most energetically to replace mercantile losses.

THE PEACE PROPOSALS.

ALLIES' REPLY TO AMERICA.

LONDON, January 13th.

After setting forth the series of enemy crimes, the Allied reply to President Wilson's Note (the first part of which was published in our issue of Saturday) continues:—Such a catalogue of crimes drawn between the opposing belligerents. The Allies do not find any difficulty in stating their war aims. These can only be formulated in detail, with all just compensations and indemnities for losses, when the moment of negotiation arrives, but it is well-known that they will include, primarily and necessarily, the restoration of Belgium, Serbia, and Montenegro; the evacuation of the invaded territory of France, Russia and Roumania; and the reorganisation of Europe on the right which all peoples have to the enjoyment of full security and free economic development; also upon territorial agreements and international arrangements framed to guarantee land and sea frontiers against unjust attacks.

The Allies also claim the restitution of provinces and territories formerly torn from the Allies forcibly or contrary to the inhabitants' wishes; the liberation of Italians, Slavs, Roumanians, Czechs and Slovaks from foreign domination; the liberation of peoples lying beneath the murderous tyranny of the Turks; the expulsion from Europe of the Ottoman Empire, which has proved itself radically alien to Western civilisation; and the carrying out of the Peace's intentions towards Poland, as shown in a proclamation just addressed to the armistice.

The Allies disclaim any intention to exterminate or to politically extinguish the Germanic peoples, though wishing to rescue Europe from the brutal encroachments of Prussian militarism.

The reply concludes that the Allies are determined to endure every sacrifice in order to press to a victorious close a conflict upon which depends their own safety and prosperity and the very future of civilisation.

AN IMPRESSIVE AND HISTORIC DOCUMENT.

London, January 13th.
The Allies' reply to President Wilson is described as an impressive and historic document. The newspapers are of the opinion that its friendly and courteous tone, its close reasoning and its lofty ideals are bound to be approved by the American people, who will contrast the frank avowal of its objects with Germany's curt refusal to give President Wilson the information asked for.

GERMANY APPEALS TO THE VERDICT OF HISTORY.

New York, January 13th.
Germany has sent a Note to neutrals relative to the Allies' reply to the offer of peace. It says that the form of the reply excludes an answer, but Germany considers it important to express her opinion of the situation to neutrals, and declares that there is no reason to discuss the origin of the war, but appeals to the verdict of history.

New York, January 13th.
The German Note to neutrals asserts that Germany made an honest effort to bring about peace but the Allies declined and therefore the Allies are fully responsible for the continuation of bloodshed.

FRANCE BEHIND THE LINE.

It is perhaps in the post office that you find yourself nearest to the heart of "France behind the line."

One morning I endeavored to send a parcel to a French soldier; I took my place in a long line of waiting women bound on the same errand. A white haired woman before me gave the Post Office clerk infinite trouble. They are not renowned for their patience and I marvelled at his gentleness, until he explained: "Her son died five weeks ago, but she still continues to send him parcels."

To another old lady he pointed out that she had written two numbers on the parcel. "You don't want two numbers, Mother. Which is your boy's number, tell me and I will strike out the other?" "Leave them both," she answered, "Who knows whether my dear lad will be there to receive the parcel? If he is not, I want it to go to some other Mother's son."

There are but few lonely soldiers now, since those who have no families to write to them receive letters and parcels from the Godmothers who have adopted them.

I remember seeing one man writing page after page. I suggested to him that he must have a particularly charming godmother. "Mademoiselle," he replied, "I have no time for a godmother since I myself am a godfather." He then explained that far away in his village there was a young assistant in his shop, and God knows the boy loves France, but both his lungs are touched, so they won't take him, but I write and tell him that the good God has given me strength for two, that I fight for him and myself, and that we are both doing well for France. I went back in imagination to the village, I could see the glint in the boy's eyes, realize how the blood pulsed quicker through his veins at the sight of, not the personal pronoun "I" in the singular, but the plural "We are doing well for France" for one glorious moment he was part of the hosts of France and in spirit serving his Motherland. It is that spirit of the French nation that their enemies will never understand.

On one occasion a young German officer, covered with mud from head to foot, was brought before one of the French Generals. He had been taken fighting cleanly, and the General was anxious to show him kindness. He asked him if he would not prefer to cleanse himself before examination. The young German drew himself up and replied: "Look at me, General, I am covered from head to foot with mud, and that mud is the soil of France—you will never possess as much soil in Germany." The General turned to him with that gentle courtesy which marks the higher commands in France and answered: "Mon-sieur, we may never possess as much soil in Germany, but there is something that you will never possess, and, until you conquer it, you can not vanquish France. It is the spirit of French people."

I have spoken much of the men of France, but the women have also earned our respect—those splendid peasant women, who even in times of peace worked and now carry a double burden on their shoulders—the middle class women endeavouring to keep together the little business built up by the men with years of toil, stinting themselves to save five francs to send a parcel to the man at the front that he may not suspect that there is not still over comfort in the little homestead—the noble women of France, who in past years could not be seen before noon, since my lady was at her toilette and who can be seen now, their hands scratched and bleeding, kneeling on the floors of the hospitals scrubbing, proud and happy to take their part in national service. The men owe much of their courage to the attitude of the women who stand behind them, turning their tears to smiles to urge their men to even greater deeds of heroism.

In one of our hospitals was a young lad of 17 who had managed to enlist as an "engage volontaire" by lying as to his age. His old mother came to visit him, and she told me he was the last of her three sons; the two elder had died the first week of the war at Pont-a-Mousson, and her little home had been burned to the ground. The boy had spent his time inventing new and terrible methods of dealing with the enemy, but with his mother he became a child again and tenderly patted the old face. Seeing the lad in his mother's arms, and for getting for a moment the spirit of the French nation, I asked for if she would not be glad if her boy was so wounded that she might take him home. She was only an old peasant woman, but her eyes flashed, her cheeks flushed with anger, and turning to me she said:

"Mademoiselle, how dare you say such a thing to me? If all the mothers, wives and sweethearts thought as you would have only one thing to do, get well quickly and fight for Mother France."

Because these women of France have sent their men forth to die, eyes dry, with stiff lips and head erect, do not think that they do not mourn for them. When night casts her kindly mantle of darkness over all, when they are hidden from the eyes of the world, it is then that the proud heads droop and are bent upon their arms, as the women cry out in the bitterness of their souls for the men who have gone from them. Yet they realize that behind them stands the greatest Mother of all—Mother France, who sees coming towards her, from all frontiers, line on line of ambulances with their burden of suffering humanity, yet watches along other routes her sons going forth in thousands, laughter in their eyes, songs on their lips, ready and willing to die for her.

France draws around her battered and bloodstained robe, yet what matters the outer garment? Behind it shines forth her glorious, exultant soul, and she lifts up her head rejoicing and proclaiming to the world that when she appeared man, woman, and child—the whole of the French nation answered to her call.

A MAINSTAY OF FRANCE.

THE PEASANTRY AND THE WAR.

[FROM A CORRESPONDENT TO "THE TIMES"]

France has confidence in her peasants and her peasants have confidence in France. The three essentials of victory are men, munitions, and money. The last is only a means of estimating, and mobilizing wealth, and the foundation of the wealth of France is agriculture. After making a general study of French agriculture as affected by the war and visiting typical departments in Anjou, Touraine, and Normandy, I am satisfied that there is no cause for alarm. To maintain the value of agricultural production while nine-tenths of the agriculturists of military age were mobilized was a nearly impossible task. The impossible has been achieved, thanks to the devotion of those remaining in the fields, and thanks also to the activity of the various administrative services which have co-operated with one another and with them to organize their voluntary efforts and to give them whatever extra assistance was possible.

The peasant population of France is necessarily bearing a double share of the burden of the war. That is not to say that the other classes are shirking—far from it—but the growing importance of the munitions question has caused the withdrawal of thousands of workmen to the factories, with the result that the proportion of agriculturists remaining with the colours is much greater than their proportion to the total population. At the same time, their wives, children, and aged fathers carry on in the fields with inadequate labour resources a work which is equally necessary for victory, while profits continue to diminish with the increasing cost of manures and other raw materials. But they have confidence in the future, and a wise Administration has done its best to lessen their difficulties and add to the efficiency of their efforts to till the soil they love so well.

CO-OPERATIVE MACHINES.

Mechanical cultivation is rapidly spreading. Where the farms are too small for individuals to buy tractors the Ministry of Agriculture encourages the formation of co-operative societies for their collective purchase and use, and grants by way of subsidy one-third of the cost of the outfit purchased. Occasionally a commune assisted by a similar subsidy, or a loan from the Council-General of the department, or both, buys a tractor and plough and hires them out to the local farmers, who pay, perhaps, £1 per acre for the work done, while the commune provides the skilled labour and pays all running expenses. In the case of one such municipal tractor that I saw, the skilled labour consisted of one man who had lost a leg at the ankle in the war. With the help of his machine this mutilated man was doing the work of four men and six horses.

Prisoners of war have been placed at the disposal of the rural communes, whose mayors distribute them among the different farmers who require their services. In one department I found 600 thus employed, in another 800, in another 700, and so on. In busy seasons the military authorities send a large number of soldiers to take part in agricultural operations. In one department alone, from October 1st, 1915, to August 10th, 1916, 303,890 days' work was thus given to agriculture, and if we reckon at 5f. (4s.) per day the wealth thus produced we can see that it amounts to a considerable sum. That this policy has not impaired military efficiency the battlefields of Verdun and the Somme bear eloquent testimony.

The principle that everything must be subordinated to the general interest has been applied in every department of the national life, and has been accepted as a matter of course by the people. If soldiers unload railway trucks or thresh corn the Minister of War does not have to beg pardon from an irate trade union delegation.

COMPULSORY TILLAGE.

Committees of agricultural action, containing all that is left of the more intelligent and enterprising farmers, have been constituted in each rural commune to direct its whole agricultural policy. A law has practically been passed and will shortly be promulgated giving to the municipalities the right to requisition, if necessary, uncultivated land and have it cultivated under the supervision of these committees. Its full rigour will only be directed against the infinitesimal minority who have failed to do their duty in this matter, and solitary women or the mobilized owners of deserted farms, where such exist, will be only too glad to have their land cultivated on these or any conditions; but even if very few attempts at compulsory cultivation are actually made, the moral effect of such a law will be most salutary.

The Ministry of Agriculture is anxious for the immediate future of French agriculture; it is precisely because it realizes at once the difficulties and the enormous importance of its task, and because it has hitherto been active, intelligent, and successful in combating these difficulties that the present writer regards the prospect with equanimity. If the cost of living had increased very seriously, it would have been reflected in my hotel bill, and I have faced sumptuously in the provinces on less than £1 a day en pension. In the wheat-growing districts of France I have seen lots of stubble and ploughed land, but scarcely any land lying fallow. French wheat was sold in Bordeaux on August 29th last for 34f. (27s. 2d.) a quintal, and on the same day the price of an equal amount of wheat on the London market was the equivalent of 41.12f. (nearly one-fourth of which was represented by freight charges). Normally the French grow nearly enough wheat to feed themselves, and production has fallen off very little even during the war, yet the yield of wheat per acre is roughly twice as great in Great Britain and Ireland as in France. This is prima facie evidence that our neglect of agriculture in the past was not only bad statesmanship, but bad business.

VICTORY AT ALL COSTS.

RUSSIAN PREMIER'S STATEMENT.

BOSPHORUS AND POLAND.

When the Duma reopened on December 2nd (says The Times Petrograd correspondent) M. Rodzianko, the President, faced crowded benches and packed public galleries. The Dual floor was occupied, and in the Diplomatic Box appeared Sir George Buchanan and the other Ambassadors. All the members of the Cabinet, save M. Ignatieff, the Minister of Education, were also present. When M. Protopopoff, the Minister of the Interior, entered the Ministerial Box somewhat later than his colleagues, a stir was perceptible among the Deputies and some uncomplimentary cries arose from the ranks of the Socialists and Labour members.

The ascension of M. Trepoff, the new Prime Minister, to the tribune was the signal for a noisy demonstration, evidently prearranged and confined to the Socialists and Labour members, who loudly banged the desks, evidently resolved to continue obstruction tactics so long as the Prime Minister remained at the tribune.

M. Rodzianko invited M. Trepoff to retire and then moved the exclusion of the four ringleaders, MM. Cheldze, Kerenki, Skobelev, and Haustoff. The majority of the House accepted the motion. Nevertheless, thrice in succession the hostile demonstrations were renewed. M. Trepoff's reappearance, and only after four more obstructionists had been suspended could the Prime Minister obtain a hearing. Explaining the motives of either conduct, the obstructionists contended that the majority of the Duma themselves declared that joint labour with the Government was impossible; M. Stuermer's retirement and the appointment of M. Trepoff really changed nothing; M. Stuermer's successor was chosen from his former colleagues, all of whom remained, and the previous system of administration was preserved.

The most dramatic interruption proceeded from the Labour member, M. Subanoff, who, rising in his place, persistently shouted, "Down with the Prime Minister," and refused to obey the ruling of the majority when the President suspended him for the use of unduly strong language descriptive of the Cabinet. M. Rodzianko was compelled to declare a recess, during which he personally, together with M. Milukoff and other leading members, remonstrated with M. Subanoff, who finally, out of respect to the President of the Duma, left the hall.

M. TREPPOFF'S RECEPTION.

The Prime Minister was then permitted to read the declaration, which lasted 25 minutes. It is impossible to deny that the overwhelming majority of the House accorded the same a very cord reception. The declaration, which was read by M. Subanoff, was finally, out of respect to the President of the Duma, left the hall.

The declaration really contained nothing new. The most important passages were undoubtedly the emphatic re-assertion that Russia will not lay down arms till complete victory is attained in union with the Allies, and the first official announcement that an agreement had been concluded between Russia, Great Britain, and Italy in 1915 establishing for Russia a right to Constantinople and the Dardanelles. The existence of the agreement was already generally known, and this knowledge probably helped to weaken the impression which otherwise the public announcement would certainly have made. As it was, it evoked virtually no open enthusiasm, but the cries from the Opposition benches of "Bravo, Sazonoff," "Where's Sazonoff?" plainly indicated that members of the Duma were fully aware as to whose brilliant diplomacy Russia owes the prospective gift.

The Prime Minister, dwelling on the desire of the Government to work in harmony with the Duma, emphasized the importance of the rôle played by the Zemstvo urban institutions, which, he assured the House, the Government welcomed as a pledge of the resuscitation of the country and its emancipation from German domination. He declared that one of the chief tasks of his programme was the liberation of Russia from both the material and intellectual yoke of the ubiquitous Russian influence. Regarding the Polish problem, he reasserted Russia's resolve to restore a free united Poland within proper ethnographic boundaries in indissoluble union with Russia.

Few speeches delivered in the Duma have created a deeper impression than that of the well-known Kursk Deputy, Parishkevich, formerly a notorious reactionary but now devoting all his time to work for the Army. The orator, while still avowing himself the most Right of the Right, declined to shut his eyes to the dangerous malady from which our constituted authority was suffering, or to the fact that the overwhelming majority of the country was on the side of the majority of the Duma, together with which it condemns the policy of the Government.

The speech took nearly two hours in delivery, and contained many startling facts and accusations, which were all the weightier because the good faith of their source was not open to the smallest doubt. The entire House roared when the speaker likened the members of the Cabinet to the twelve sleeping virgins. He assailed specifically and mercilessly M. Protopopoff, the food speculator, the czarist, and Germanic influence. He contended that the newspaper with which the Minister of the Interior was still connected was supported by the banks in which German capital predominated; and although the newspaper could not openly defend the German interests, it might easily insinuate that in paralyzing Germany Russia would substitute for it England or France. The speaker asked why so many German prisoners were sent to places like Archangel and Turkestan, where they were acting as instructors? Why Germans everywhere were employed in munition factories? Why the German firm of Kuntz & Albers still existed? He further definitely charged the Department of Commerce with the disposal of a certain water which he manufactured at a time

FUTURE OF BELGIUM.

ANNEXATION PARTY GROWING BOLDER.

Articles in the inspired Press appear to indicate that the German Government has now made up its mind to refuse the restoration of the Belgian Kingdom and of the French districts of Longwy and Briey (says The Times correspondent at Amsterdam).

All parties except the Socialists and the Extreme Leftists appear now agreed that Belgium must remain under German military, political, and economic control, while the whole German press of all shades demands the retention of Longwy and Briey, owing to their industrial importance.

The Cologne Gazette says that when the Chancellor declared that Germany's object was to ensure the free development of all nations, including small nations, this cannot, and naturally does not, mean that we intend the restoration of States that have been opposed to us, as Belgium, Serbia, Montenegro, and Russia have been. It can only mean that nationalities that have been friendly to us and which incline towards us in the future are assured of our assistance.

It is interesting to observe that, according to Herr Maximilian Harden, the question of the occupied provinces was the stone over which Herr von Jagow, the German Foreign Secretary, ultimately fell. Herr Harden says: "Twice the little gentleman acknowledged that civilian courage which has unfortunately become so rare amongst us. He determined to avoid a breach with the United States as long as the honour of the country permitted, and to sacrifice his office rather than his convictions. Once more, when certain questions from countries occupied by German troops had to be answered, he resisted the military point of view, and now, weary of uninterrupted labour, he has gone."

Herr Harden appears to mean that Herr von Jagow resisted the deportation of Belgians and Serbians insisted on by the military triumvirate.

FRENCH AND BELGIANS

TAKEN AS HOSTAGES.

The Telegraph's frontier correspondent gives the names of a number of prominent citizens taken as hostages to Holzminden Camp from Lille, Roubaix, Tourcoing, and other towns. Among them are M. Delory, Delegate of Lille, the Mayors of Bapaume, Valenciennes, and Cambrai, four priests, and three barristers of Valenciennes, three barristers of Cambrai, and several bankers, &c. One of the hostages taken from Lille is an old man of 73, sick and deaf. Among the deported women are the wife of the Mayor of Valenciennes and two widows from Valenciennes. The Gazette des Ardennes gives a list of the names of 70 men and 30 women taken as hostages to Holzminden.

It may be added that Holzminden Camp is notorious for its inhuman treatment. I am able (says The Times correspondent at Amsterdam) to state on the ground of first-hand and repeatedly confirmed information that the women's section is pestilent with vermin, and that there are collected there, not only these French and Belgian ladies of high standing, but in the same draughty, dirty barracks women of the lowest type from the low quarters of German cities. I have spoken to persons from Holzminden Camp whose health had actually broken down, less owing to privations than to conditions of sheer filth.

TANKS SAVE 20,000 MEN.

Australian wounded emphasize the difficulties of the present fighting, and say that the mud is indescribable. Wounded men are covered in sludges. One battalion was knee deep in mud for five days, and when it came out there were numerous cases of trench foot. The Germans had laid barbed wire along the bottom of deep trenches, thereby multiplying the difficulties of capturing them. Experts from the front agree that the tanks by reducing machine-gun positions and other strong points have saved at least 20,000 men.

When every car was needed for the transport of provisions. He also contended that this General obtained a loan of a million roubles from the same department for the construction of a railway from the mineral water factory. The entire series of facts showed that there was some malignant will, some strong hand pulling the strings on behalf of Germany, despite the efforts of the Imperial Headquarters to defeat the foe. In conclusion, M. Parishkevitch, turning to the Minister, adjured him to hasten to Imperial Headquarters, throw themselves at the feet of the Tsar, and implore him to open his eyes to the terrible actuality and not to permit the destinies of the country to be guided by persons in German pay.

The only other speech, that of Count Bobinski, was almost wholly a fierce attack on M. Protopopoff, who during its delivery sat alongside M. Khvostoff, the ex-Home Minister. At the close of the speech M. Protopopoff, obviously labouring under great excitement, rose and hastened to the Presidential tribune with a paper supposed to contain a request to be allowed to speak, but M. Rodzianko, previously apprised of the reception he would be likely to provoke, anticipated the movement by announcing that the Session was closed till the evening.

It is symptomatic that even the Novoye Vremya this morning declares that so long as M. Protopopoff remains in the Cabinet it is hopeless to anticipate harmonious co-operation with the Duma, while there are the best grounds for believing that M. Trepoff himself is resolutely opposed to the Home Minister's continuance in office. The Progressive Bloc has sent to M. Sazonoff a telegram thanking him for the agreement as to the Dardanelles and Constantinople, achieved thanks to his talent and patriotism.
